

Product Design

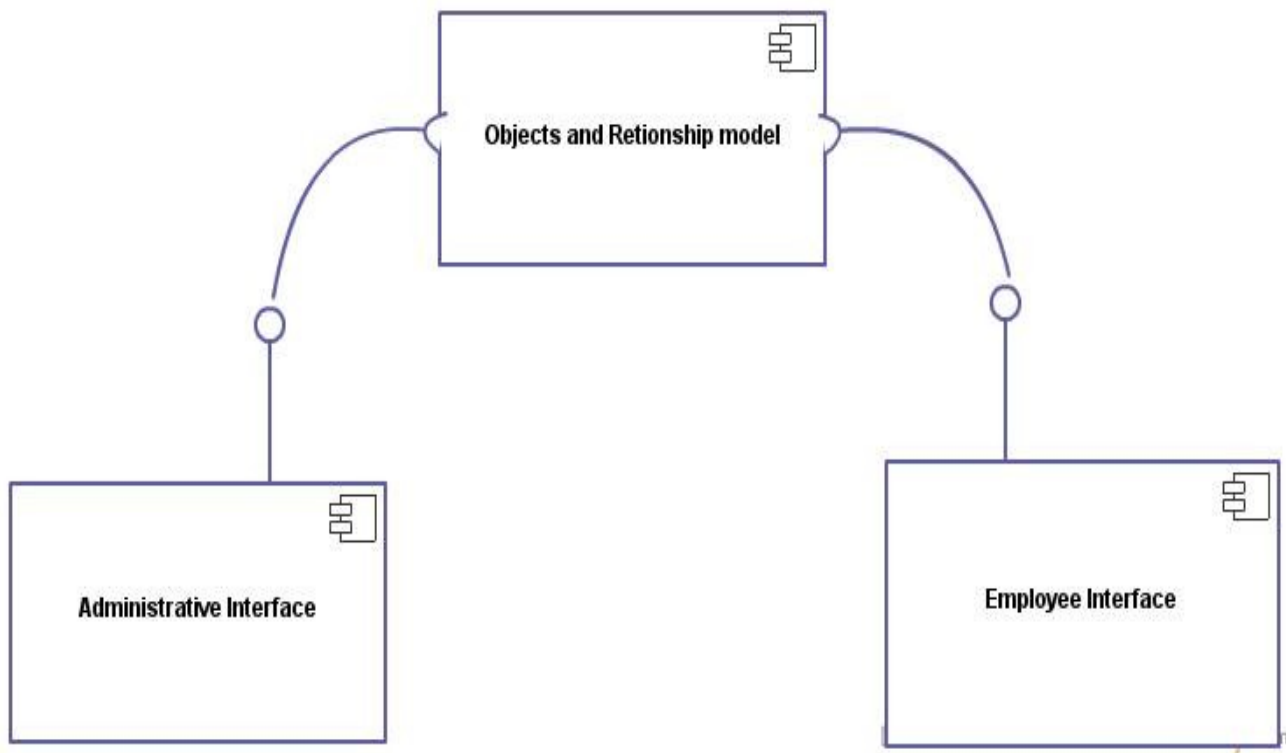

Team Number : 44

Team Project Number : 35

Project Name : OPF Event Management System

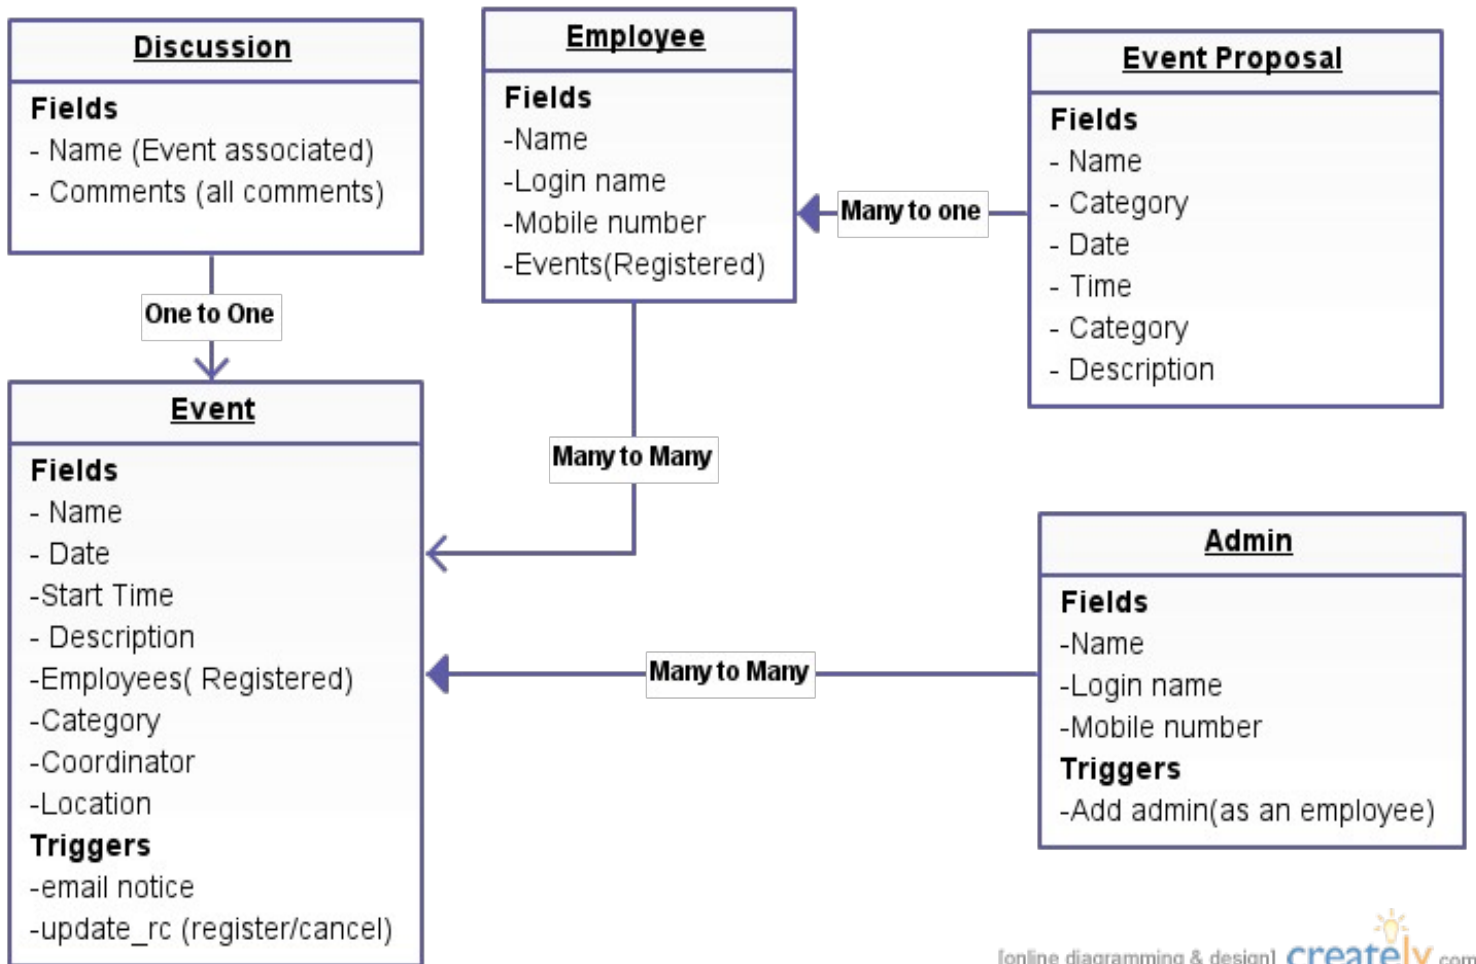

Team Members : Akhil Batra, Amitha G., Pranav Samvith B, Inturi Suhas Reddy.

Architectural Model

Administrative Interface	Component state <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Have tabs corresponding to objects and and dependent objects, with buttons and controls for CRUD operations. Component behavior <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Enable creation of new events and update them. • Viewing of events proposals • Delete an event • View comments of employees on events • Request event statistical analysis generation
Employee Interface	Component state <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • What information is the component responsible for maintaining? • Portal with login requirement consisting pages for event registration, event proposals and event discussions. Component behavior <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Propose new events • Register and cancel for events • Discuss regarding a particular event
Objects and Relationships Model	Component state <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Have object definitions, fields and records. • Enables establishment of relationships and corresponding related fields. Component behavior <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Provide a relational structure for the database. • Include various triggers and templates for implementing back-end work flows for dependent fields.

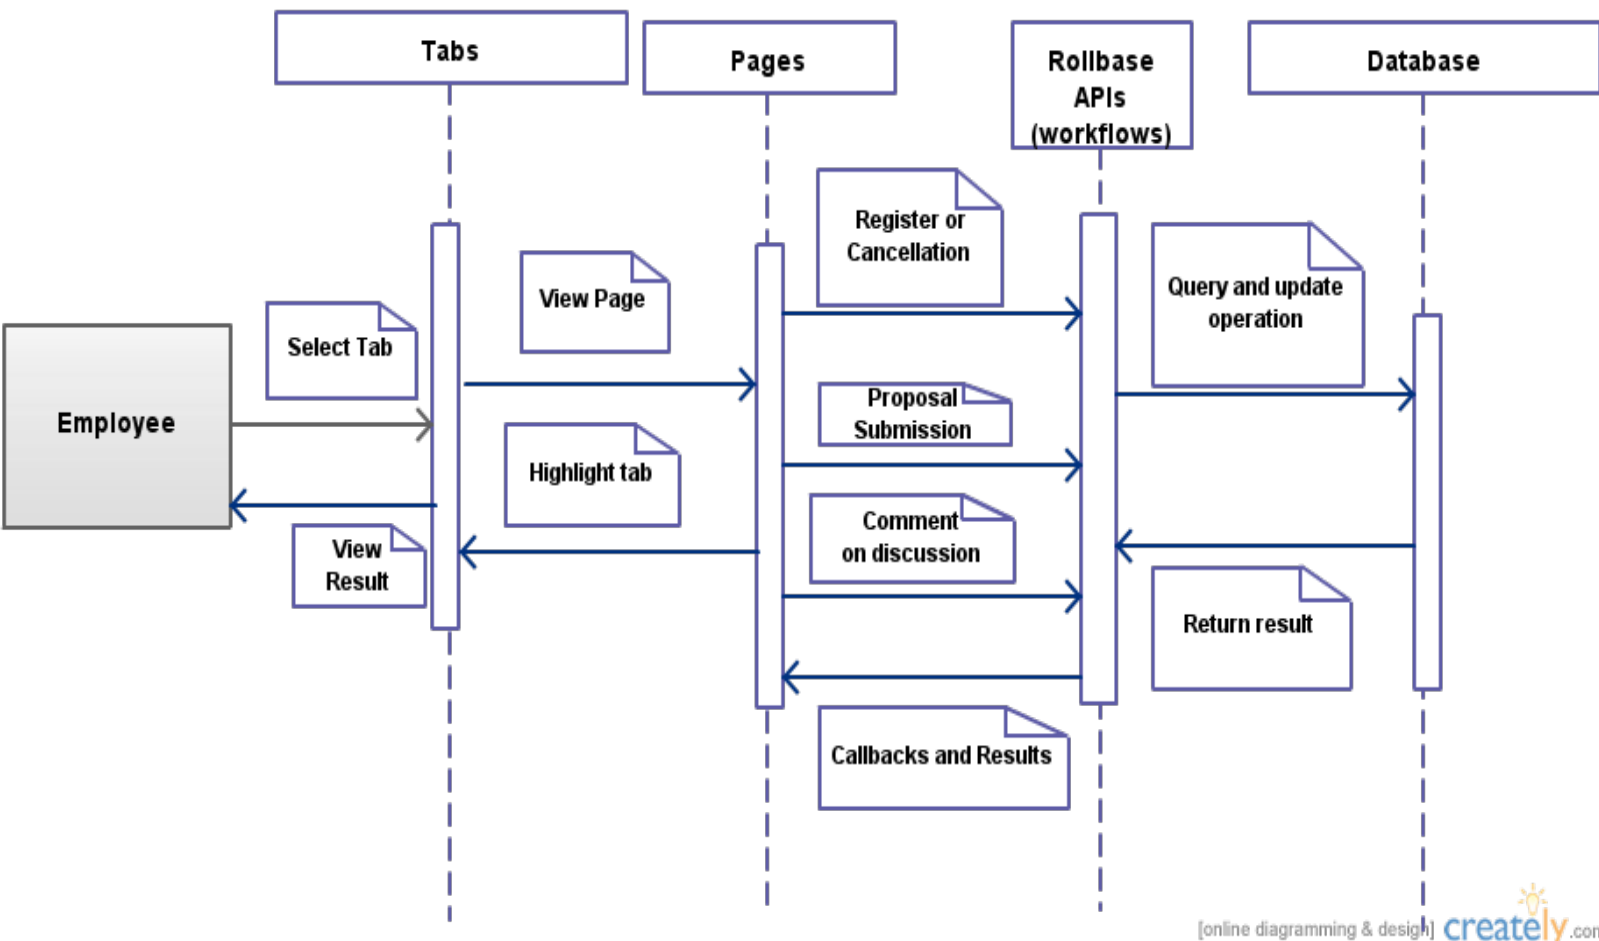

Object Diagram(s):

[online diagramming & design] creately.com

Sequence Diagram(s):

Design Rationale:

- Our original design included an option called “Give Feedback” for every event. This option was scrapped because a discussion page with comments of the employees registered for the event seemed preferable to that of just giving discreet feedbacks.
- We also decided to give an option to the employees to register themselves on the portal for login, for the app to be implemented even in the absence of a central authentication system.